Hi, this is Meron Degefom. My passion of trying and knowing new things led me to be a huge fan of technology. Starting from childhood I used to say that someday I will be among the individuals who is leaving their foot print in the technology. And I know "dream doesn't work if you don't work" so I started my journey by join Mekelle university as a communication engineering student and I am among the outstanding students in our campus. Moreover, I am taking a training about web apps in entoto project. By participating in this project I believe my entrepreneurship skill, innovating and creating new things will be developed. That means by combining my department and the skills I find in the entoto project I really want to work on real world problems. I see myself being the best coder and real engineer in the future.
